of towns, and at almost a moment's notice hey can pour their population into this city whenever the attraction is great enough to warrant it. So far this season there has been no occasion for such a pilgrimage. The wishy-washy character of the attractions pre-ented here has not been able to draw them out. Now, while Memphis and its surrounding tes have all contributed very handsomely to Mr. Booth's success, they have not done what they might have done had there been a theater here large enough to hold a good audience; and had the management intelligence and acumen enough to know

If we had a place of amusement that would seat twice the audithey sold seats to the family circle. The amusement that would seat twice the audience that the Memphis Theater does, it could have been filled every night by the people of the surrounding towns. Naturally those people look to Memphis for amusement, but they have looked so long in vain that they have ceased to look at all. In this way the theatrical interests of Memphis languish, and the impression goes abroad that it is a sort of

The "Cheap John" policy of Brooks helps it along in its downward path, and the inferior nature of the attractions practically confirms its tendency to ruin. How often do we see at the Theater such andiences as have greeted Booth? It is not so much to numbers of those present as to their character that reference is made. It is the rarest thing to see one of the well-to-do merchants of Front street at the Theater. Why? They are men who don't believe in giving something for nothing unless in a case of charity, and they see no reason why they should contribute their shekels to Sufferer ooks. The usual audience is composed of young men and young ladies, and of course this class is not large enough to sustain it. It is said that Memphis is a to sustain it. It is said that Memphis is a three night town; that there are not enough people here to sustain a single play for a week. The reason of this is simply the "Shadow-oi-Death" circuit.
